Forecasts for Polish economy

GDP of Poland (\%, YoY)

Slowdown of Polish economy in 3Q'22 milder comparing to 2Q'22

Consumption and inflation CPI (\%, YoY)
Inflation exceeded the level of $17 \%$ in September, rising energy prices are accompanied by strong growth of core inflation

[^2]Positive set of data for September allows for consideration that Polish GDP in 3Q will not change significantly from previous quarter and there is high probability that technical recession had not occurred.

In September price dynamics in categories different from energy, fuel and food remained high. Energetic shock is impacting total economy, being reflected in core inflation - second round effects are in place.

Previous months data (strong production and sales) as well as market events (growing yield of treasuries) are implying scenario in which in order to fight inflation further monetary policy tightening will be inevitable.

NBP reference rate (\%, end of period)
November publication of Central Bank inflation forecasts will play key role for the further Monetary Policy Council's decisions on interest rate
